Our Expertise

A well functioning labour market is crucial for the well-being of a society and vital for fostering development. However, in view of today's rapidly changing markets, governments, employers and employees are in need to review their strategies in order to adapt to new labour market conditions. Many countries have therefore embarked on reform processes of their labour markets.

Our work seeks to support this endeavour using an essentially demand-oriented and holistic approach. Our services are therefore generally based on thorough up-front analyses of the conditions that are determining for a reasonable set-up of employment-generating measures. A focus on the promotion of social dialogue among key players of the labour market constitutes the second element of our approach as we believe in a balance of interests and transparency of information as important catalysts for employment. Thirdly, it has become our conviction that the usually rich international good practice expertise of our consultants can be effective if we dedicate great efforts to the adjustment of the design of our services to local needs and experiences.
